DISEASES OF THE BILIARY TRACT, SERIES #4

11 The Gallstone Story: Pathogenesis and Epidemiology
by Neil Bajwa, Rajinder Bajwa, Ambrish Ghumman, R. M. Agrawal
Among biliary tract disease, gallstone disease is the leading cause for inpatient admissions for gastrointestinal problems. This paper will review the pathogenesis and epidemiology of gallstone disease, focusing on both unmodifiable and modifiable risk factors.

DISEASES OF THE BILIARY TRACT, SERIES #5

24 Biliary Diseases in HIV
by Alexander Brun, C.S. Pitchumoni
Manifestations of human immunodeficiency virus infection range from acute primary infections to life threatening symptomatic diseases that result from opportunistic infections. This article concentrates on the etiology, clinical presentations, diagnoses and treatment options of AIDS cholangiopathy and acalculous cholecystitis.

INFLAMMATORY BOWEL DISEASE, SERIES #63

33 The Use of Biologic Therapy in the Pregnant Patient
by Uma Mahadevan
Inflammatory bowel disease affects women during their childbearing years, with the peak age of onset between 15 to 30 years of age. This article presents the best evidence to date on the use of anti-tumor necrosis factor (TNF) therapy on fertility and pregnancy in women with IBD.
The Art of Fistuloclysis: Nutritional Management of Enterocutaneous Fistulas
by Kate Willcutts
Enterocutaneous (EC) fistulas, though relatively rare, are very challenging to manage. This case study is presented demonstrating the complexity of managing the EC fistula patient focusing on the nutritional management and the importance of a multidisciplinary approach.

Adult Onset Nesidioblastosis: A Diagnostic Dilemma
by Dushyant Singh, Reetu Singh
This is the first reported case of nesidioblastosis in a dialysis patient, which makes it unique. Nesidioblastosis can often be unrecognized, and early identification and prompt treatment plays a critical role in the management of such patients.
Book Reviews
Recently published books and CD-ROMs in gastroenterology. George W. Meyer, M.D., editor of “Book Reviews,” is on the Editorial Board of Practical Gastroenterology.

From the Literature
Murray H. Cohen, D.O., editor of “From the Literature” reviews papers in gastroenterology that readers may have missed.

From the Pediatric Gastroenterology Literature
by John F. Pohl, M.D., editor of “From the Pediatric Gastroenterology Literature” is on the Editorial Board of Practical Gastroenterology.

Medical Bulletin Board
News items of interest to the nation’s gastroenterologists.

Meetings Calendar
Meetings, events, courses, symposia, and their contacts.

Reader Request Fax Form
Readers may obtain additional information about products and services that appear in Practical Gastroenterology.